Races

There are eight races to choose from.

Human The most adaptable and ambitious of all peoples, humans excel through determination and versatility rather than specialized traits. They build great cities, forge alliances across cultures, and push boundaries others accept as fixed. Human communities vary wildly in customs and beliefs, but share a drive to shape the world around them through innovation, trade, and exploration.

Elf Graceful and long-lived folk with pointed ears and an affinity for magic and nature. Elves move with fluid precision and possess keen senses that detect subtle changes in their surroundings. They favor ancient forests and hidden valleys, living in harmony with natural cycles while pursuing artistic and mystical knowledge that spans centuries.

Dwarf Stout, four feet tall, bearded people renowned for their skill in metalwork, stonework, and engineering. Dwarves build magnificent halls deep within mountains, creating wonders of carved stone and forged metal that endure for ages. They value clan loyalty, honest work, and the perfection of traditional crafts passed down through generations, though they may seem temperamental, it's really just them showing spirit in what they do.

Gnome Diminutive folk with curious minds and nimble fingers, standing roughly three feet tall. Gnomes delight in tinkering with mechanical devices, studying natural phenomena, and uncovering hidden secrets. They often dwell in hillside burrows or forest workshops, surrounded by half-finished inventions and collections of interesting oddities. Though not common to adventuring - the lure of fantastic magical items can't quell their thirst.

Half-Goblin (don't ask) Small, quick humanoids with green-tinged or brown skin and sharp features. Goblins live in tribal communities led by the strongest or most cunning among them. They survive through scavenging, raiding, and guerrilla tactics, making up for their individual weakness with numbers, traps, and knowledge of their territory. Their height ranges from a bit taller than halflings, yet a bit shorter than dwarves, standing around just over 4 feet.

Half-Elf Children of human and elven parentage who inherit traits from both lineages. Half-elves often struggle to find acceptance in either parent culture, leading many to become wanderers, diplomats, or bridge-builders between different peoples. They possess human adaptability tempered with elven grace and extended lifespans.

Half-Orc Individuals born of human and orcish blood, typically larger and stronger than ordinary humans. Half-orcs face prejudice in civilized lands due to their fearsome appearance and orcish heritage. Many channel their natural strength and fierce temperament.

Halfling Small humanfolk standing about three and a half-feet tall, known for their practical nature and strong community bonds. They favor comfortable homes and hearty meals shared with family. Most halflings have little interest in grand adventures, preferring the security of familiar places and trusted neighbors. But once in a long while, a halfling seeks to adventure to ensure these things later.

Choose only 1 race Unique Abilities during character creation.

Dark Sense: in complete darkness you have a 40% of sensing something is near you, within a 30 foot radius. Can attempt every hour, or when DN declares, moving or not.

Classes

A character's class defines their role in the game: what they are trained to do in combat, how they advance in power, and what unique abilities they gain. A class is not a hobby, career or trade - it is a structured path of growth, such as Fighter, Wizard, Cleric, or Thief, that shapes how the character survives and contributes to the party.

Fighter - The warrior. You're good at hitting things with weapons and not dying when things hit you back. High hit points, best armor, expertise with all weapons. Whether you're a sword-and-board tank, a two-handed weapon bruiser, or an archer picking off targets, you're the party's damage dealer and meat shield.

Cleric - The divine spellcaster. You channel the power of gods to heal allies, smite enemies, and work miracles. You get healing spells, can turn undead, and have decent combat ability with simple weapons and medium armor. You're the party's primary healer and support, but you can hold your own in a fight.

Wizard - The arcane spellcaster. You've studied magic through books and practice, giving you the biggest spell list and most versatile magic. Low hit points and limited armor, but you can solve problems with the right spell - fireballs for damage, charm person for social encounters, detect magic for mysteries. You're the party's problem-solver and crowd control.

Thief - The skill expert. You excel at stealth, lockpicking, trap detection, and generally doing things others can't. Backstab damage when you catch enemies off-guard, ability to climb walls and move silently. You're the party's scout, infiltrator, and the one who keeps everyone from walking into deadly traps.

These four classes form the foundation of any adventuring party, but they're flexible enough to cover way more character concepts than you might think.

More Classes?

If you want to play a Paladin, build a Fighter and let your Dungeon Narrator know your character is sworn to law and honor. If you'd rather be a Druid, build a Cleric and declare your devotion to plants and animals. The same goes for countless other archetypes/subclasses you may know - rangers, sorcerers, warlocks, monks.

With just Cleric, Fighter, Wizard, and Thief as your foundation, you can shape nearly any hero you imagine. Consult with your DN for further guidance.

Class Overview

Every adventurer begins with a purse of 150 gold pieces to outfit themselves for their first journey. This is the coin they will spend on armor, weapons, tools, and the basic gear of travel - from cloaks and boots to rations and backpacks. You've trained, saved and prepared for this moment.

Fighter

Masters of arms and armor. Fighters may wield any weapon, from dagger to greatsword, and wear any armor, from leather to full plate.

The fighter begins with 12 Hit Points, gaining +12 HP per level thereafter. They start with no equipment, and receive 150 gold pieces to purchase weapons, armor, and other starting gear.

Cleric

Devoted to the divine. Clerics may wear all types of armor but limited to max DR chainmail. Clerics are bound to blunt weapons - maces, hammers, flails, staves, etc. - never blades. If in doubt, consult with your DN.

The cleric begins with 8 Hit Points, gaining +8 HP per level thereafter. They start with no equipment, except for a holy symbol of their chosen deity. They also receive 150 gold pieces to purchase weapons, armor, and other starting gear.

Wizard

Scholars of magic. Wizards are limited to simple arms - dagger, staff, sling, dart, etc. They may not wear armor, except for padded armor, as it interferes with spellcasting. If you have any questions about weapons, consult with your DN.

The wizard begins with 5 Hit Points, gaining +5 HP per level thereafter. They start with no equipment except a spellbook, and receive 150 gold pieces to purchase starting gear, weapons, and armor.

Thief

Quick and cunning. Thieves favor light weapons - daggers, shortwords, slings, bow, etc. - and light armor that does not hinder agility, such as padded, leather and studded leather. Heavy armor and large shields are off limits.

The thief begins with 7 Hit Points, gaining +7 HP per level thereafter. They start with no equipment, and receive 150 gold pieces to purchase weapons, armor, and other starting gear.

Experience and Leveling

Level 1 = 0 XP

Level 2 = 2,000 XP

Level 3 = 4,000 XP

Every level after level 3 is another 2,000 more XP, each, up to level 10.

See Core Guide page 6 for details about leveling and experience.

Class Requirements and Hit Points

Classes have 1 primary ability that must be met, and have default Hit Points (HP) per level.

Fighter - minimum Strength 16
Cleric - minimum Wisdom 16
Wizard - minimum Intelligence 16
Thief - minimum Dexterity 16

Fighter starts with 12 Hit Points per level
Cleric starts with 8 Hit Points per level
Wizard starts with 5 Hit Points per level
Thief starts with 7 Hit Points per level

A Note on Class Restrictions

Each class has its limits for a reason. If a cleric raises a sword, if a wizard straps on heavy armor or hefts a forbidden weapon, or if a thief clanks into battle in plate - the attempt simply fails. The blow glances as though untrained, the spell fizzles beneath the weight of armor, the thief stumbles and loses their edge. Your Dungeon Narrator (DN) may also rule divine powers or class features are withheld when you step outside your bounds.

Stay within your class's path, and your abilities will serve you well.

Resting - Hit Point Recovery

Hit Point recovery occurs organically with a full night's rest of 6 or more hours.

The amount recovered depends on the conditions of rest:

Unsafe Rest (cavern, dungeon, camp, etc.): Recover 25% of your maximum HP after a full night.

Safe Rest (inn, stronghold, etc.): Recover 25% of your maximum HP + (your Constitution Bonus x character level) after a full night.

Downtime (one full week without adventuring): Recover all lost HP.

Money

OD uses a four-tier currency system. Copper Pieces (CP) are the lowest denomination. Then Silver Pieces, Gold Pieces and Platinum Pieces.

Order of value: 10 CP = 1 SP • 10 SP = 1 GP • 10 GP = 1 PP

FIGHTER

Masters of arms and armor. Fighters may wield any weapon, from dagger to greatsword, and wear any armor, from leather to full plate.

Starts with 12 HP and gains +12 HP every level.

Requirement: to be a fighter class, your strength ability scores must be at least 16.

Fighter Default Class Abilities

Second Wind

At level 4 1d6+6 HP mid-battle.

Wall Mule – You can climb while carrying up to twice your body weight in gear or passengers. Armor, packs, even another person slung over your shoulder — you just keep climbing. You never need help with ropes or ladders, and others can climb faster if you're hauling them. You have a 40% chance to climb walls, limited to heights of 60 feet.

Weapon Lore – By handling a weapon, you know its type, quality, and cultural origin. You can tell if it's masterwork, ceremonial, or built for a monster.

Athletic Feats – You can leap across 10-foot gaps, lift portcullises, break doors, or throw heavy objects farther than most. Gain +2 Chances to such feats of strength or speed.

Tactical Eye – After a moment of study, ask the DN one: "Where's the danger?", "What's the best escape?", or "Who's the biggest threat?"

Weapon Stunt – On turn, you can use your weapon for a non-damage feat — hook a shield (pull shield from them), sweep a leg, knock a helmet off, flip a lever, snag a keyring, etc.

Pack Mule – You can carry twice the normal weight with no penalties. You're also great at loading gear and balancing packs.

Marching Discipline – When you lead, your group travels 25% farther without fatigue. You know when to rest and when to push.

Battle Roar – Once per combat encounter, unleash a roar or battle cry that rallies allies and shakes foes. Allies within earshot gain +1 to their next attack roll.

Weapon Tinker – You can modify or adapt weapons in the field. With simple tools, you can shorten a spear for close quarters, sharpen a broken blade into a dagger, or improvise a weapon from scrap on the spot (DN decides the weapon type and damage stats).

Blood for Blood - When an enemy hits you in melee, you can choose to take an extra 1d4 damage to immediately counter-attack them, interrupting their action. Pain fuels you.

Veteran's Eye - You can accurately assess any combatant's skill level, remaining HP (roughly), and armor quality at a glance. Know who's dangerous and who's fodder.

Weapon Break - Once per combat encounter, deliberately destroy your weapon on impact to deal triple damage. Better to win with a broken sword than die with a whole one.

First Strike - You always act first in the first round of combat, regardless of initiative. You've trained to react instantly to violence.

Combat Reading - After fighting someone for 2 rounds, you learn their combat style. Gain +2 to hit them for the rest of the fight, on your 3rd turn.

Adrenaline Surge - When you kill an enemy, only your next attack in this combat encounter will automatically hit. The rush of victory guides your blade.

Combat Momentum - When you move at least 10 feet before attacking, add +2 to damage. You've learned to put your whole body into strikes.

Battlefield Medicine - You can patch wounds mid-fight. Spend one round to restore 1d4 HP to yourself or an adjacent ally using bandages and pressure. +1 HP per level. Practical trauma care.

Unstoppable - Once per day, for the next 2 rounds you can act normally regardless of conditions - paralyzed, stunned, webbed, held, etc. You just keep coming through sheer bloody determination.

Fighters will grow while leveling up, not just organically, but through magic weapons that will help with health, attack, defense via treasures.

CLERIC

Devoted to the divine. Stewards of faith. Clerics may wear all types of armor but no greater than chainmail. Clerics are bound by tradition to blunt weapons - maces, hammers, flails, staves, etc. - never blades. If in doubt, consult with your DN.

Starts off with no gear, just a religious symbol.

At 4th level +2 to saves for allies and -2 saves for enemies and is now 20-ft aura around you. At 6th level you may center it on a point you can see, up to 100 feet from you.

Turn Undead

Casting Time: Turn

Range: 30 feet radius

Duration: 2d6 rounds or destroyed

Save Roll: Wis Mind

Effect: Channel divine power that affects a Cleric's pool of undead HP. Undead turned or destroyed from line of sight.

Turning Pool

Pool =  $20 \times \text{Cleric Level}$ .

You may choose to target specific undead instead of going lowest HP first, until your HP pool either runs out or too low to be effective.

Undead whose HP exceeds your remaining pool are completely unaffected - no save, no partial effect.

Saves by Undead

Undead with HP  $\leq 25$ : No Save Roll.

Undead with HP  $\geq 26$ : Wis Mind save to resist.

Outcomes

Turned: The undead flees for 2d6 rounds. If unable to escape, it becomes clumsy in combat, suffering -4 to attack rolls until the effect ends.

Destroyed: If undead's HP  $\leq 10 \times \text{Cleric Level}$ , they are dusted instead of turned.

Progression

Level 1 Cleric = 1 cast/day, Pool 20 HP, Destroy monsters with  $\leq 10$  HP

Level 9 Cleric = 3 castings/day, Pool 180 HP, Destroy monsters with  $\leq 90$  HP

Notes

HP Pool is restored if you've meditated that morning, else spent HP Pool doesn't replenish.

Mind effects ignore DR.

Intelligent undead that successfully save are unaffected and don't consume pool.

Consult with DN to determine which monsters are "undead" or "intelligent undead".

Valid Commands

The command must be a single word, immediate, and possible. Common examples include:

Kneel – drop to knees and stop moving.
Drop – release what is being held.
Flee – retreat directly away from you.
Silence – stop speaking or chanting.

At 4th level you can awaken the corpse to answer 1 question. The reply is simple and truthful, though limited by the creature's knowledge in life.

At 7th level you can ask 3 questions.

Cleric Spells

See Core Guide “Spell Attack and Defense” for spell mechanics.

Cleric unlocks all spells of spell level equal to class level e.g. a level 1 cleric gets access to use all 1st-level spells, at level 2, cleric gets access to all 2nd-level spells, and so on.

See Cleric Spellbook for all cleric spells.

Each spell can be cast 1 time per day.

A day for spell usage resets at 6am.

Cleric must mediate (pray) 30 minutes each morning by 10am to reset spells they can cast again.

If a cleric does not meditate (pray), they can still cast any of the spells they know at each spell level. However, spells they have already cast remain expended and cannot be regained until they complete their meditation.

Cleric Spellcasting

A cleric may cast spells up to their level.

4 spells per day for each levels 1–3

3 spells per day for each levels 4–6

2 spells per day for each levels 7–9

Example: A 3rd-level cleric can cast 4 Level 1 spells, 4 Level 2 spells, and 4 Level 3 spells each day.

WIZARD

Scholars of magic. Wizards are limited to simple arms - dagger, staff, sling, dart, etc. They may not wear armor, except for padded armor or a robe, as it interferes with spellcasting. If you have any questions about weapons, consult with your DN.

Starts with 5 HP and gains +5 HP every level.
Starts off with no gear, just a spell book.
Starts off with 150 gold pieces to buy everything from gear to weapons to armor.

Requirement: to be a wizard class, your intelligence ability scores must be at least 16.

Wizard Default Class Abilities

Arcane Focus

You must keep your spellbook; it is your lifeline. Losing it means you cannot prepare new spells. You know how to protect it: encase and seal it in waxed leather, wrap it in oiled canvas, or keep it within a metal-bound case. Lock and chain it, perhaps even to your belt. Hide it in secret compartments — false bottoms in satchels or concealed pouches. Disguise it as a farmer's ledger or a holy book. Some wizards even carry decoy tomes to mislead the careless and the curious.

Ritual Casting — Codex Work

Wizards do not only cast spells; they study, record, and preserve them. A ritual is not a spell but a deliberate act of scholarship and magical craft. A ritual requires ten uninterrupted hours of intense study, ink-stained fingers, and unwavering concentration. It is not a quick trick or flourish of power, but a grueling act of scholarship that drains the mind and tests the will. Through this exhaustive process, a wizard can copy spells from scrolls, fragments, or another wizard's notes into their spellbook, stabilize fragile magical texts so they do not fade or crumble, encrypt or disguise their own writings so only they can read them, or expand their spellbook with diagrams, formulae, and protective wards. Rituals never expend spell slots — they are the wizard's true craft, earned through patience and endurance. Each successful ritual is a victory of discipline over fatigue, and through them the spellbook grows, survives, and becomes a true grimoire.

Arcane Overload

Once per day, a wizard may unleash an Arcane Overload within 60 feet in sight, dealing 1d6 damage per caster level to a single target with no Save Roll allowed. The wizard also suffers 1 point of damage per caster level used, which cannot be reduced, making this desperate power costly and dangerous. (see next page for more details)...

OpenDungeons.com

Arcane Sense

Once per week, the wizard may concentrate for 1 minute to sense the presence of nearby magic within 30 feet — faint glimmers, whispers, or tingling auras that others cannot perceive.

At Level 4

Arcane Sensing

Once per day, the wizard may concentrate for 1 minute to sense the presence of nearby magic within 30 feet — faint glimmers, whispers, or tingling auras that others cannot perceive.

Scholar's Insight

The wizard gains +2 on any Chance Rolls involving ancient texts, magical symbols, or runes. They read, decipher, and interpret arcane writing faster than anyone else.

Spell Sigil

The wizard can inscribe a simple magical mark once per day — a glowing rune, invisible ward, or symbol. It lasts until the next dawn and reveals who passed by, tampered with it, or disturbed the area.

Focused Mind

Once per long rest, the wizard may reroll a failed Mind save against a magical effect, representing their intense training and focus against hostile sorcery.

Wizard Level-Up Bonuses

Choose any 1 per level starting at level 1.

Wizard chooses any 1 unique Level-Up Bonus Abilities at each level (1–9). These show arcane mastery, weird insight, and subtle magical tricks.

Ghost Eye – Once per day, you may open your sight to the unseen. For 1 minute you perceive invisible or ethereal beings. Your pupils glow faintly when this power is active, betraying your altered vision.

Witchmarks – You can sense and recognize fellow spellcasters by subtle marks in their aura, mannerisms, or bearing. This is not infallible, but you gain instinctive insight whenever such beings are within sight..

Mnemonic Focus – Once per day, you may recall with supernatural clarity something you have witnessed, read, or heard, even if it was in a language unknown to you. You can repeat it word-for-word or recreate it exactly, up to 20 seconds of content. At 6th level 1 minute of content.

Wizard's Whim – Once per day, you may conjure harmless alterations to your surroundings — smoke puffs, glowing eyes, a voice that echoes, a shift in robe color, a change in food flavor, the scent of incense or rot, sparks, floating quills, self-turning pages, candles that light or snuff, drifting shadow-shapes, or the sound of distant chimes. These illusions last 1 minute and cannot cause harm. And once per day, you can concentrate to manipulate small objects at a distance, up to 30 feet away, as if using an invisible hand. You can push, pull, open, or carry up to 2 pounds. Actions must be simple and visible to you, and the DM may require a roll for delicate or risky work. Lasts up to 1 minute.

Ley Step

Once per day, you can shift your position a short distance by stepping through ambient magic. Instantly teleport up to 10 feet to an unoccupied space you can see. This counts as your action for the turn. At 4th level you can teleport 30 feet. At 8th level you can teleport 60 feet.

Arcane Veil

Once per day, when you are struck by an attack, you may instantly shroud yourself in a veil of flickering wards. All damage is reduced by half, and you become blurred for 1 minute. While blurred, attacks against you suffer -2 to hit. At 4th level, you may use this power twice per day, and attacks against you suffer -3 to hit while blurred.

Continued, Wizard Level-Up Bonuses

Exile Ward – Once per day, when a creature moves within 15 feet of you, you may instantly banish them to another spot. Roll 3d20 to determine the distance (3–60 feet). The creature is teleported to a random unoccupied space at that distance, or the nearest unoccupied space if the rolled destination is blocked. No Save Roll if less than 80 Hit Points, otherwise, the creature may attempt a Tough Save Roll not to be affected. At 6th level, you may use Exile Ward twice per day. At 8th level, you may target up to two creatures at once when they enter range.

Familiar – Once per day, you can target a small, low-intelligence animal (squirrel, raven, cat, rat, lizard, etc.) within 30 feet and forge a temporary magical bond. The animal does not make a Save Roll and becomes your familiar for 3 hours. While bonded, it understands your simple commands and shares basic emotions with you through an empathic link. The familiar can perform simple tasks but retains its natural instincts and limitations. If frightened you will feel it, and the bond immediately breaks. When the effect ends, the animal returns to its normal behavior with no memory of the bonding. At 4th level, the duration increases to 4 hours. At 8th level, the duration increases to 6 hours.

Wizard Spells

See Core Guide “Spell Attack and Defense” for spell mechanics.

Wizard unlocks all spells of spell level equal to class level e.g. a level 1 wizard gets access to use all 1st-level spells, at level 2, wizard gets access to all 2nd-level spells, and so on.

See Wizard Spellbook for all wizard spells.

Each spell can be cast 1 time per day.

A day for spell usage resets at 6am.

Wizard must study 30 minutes each morning by 10am to reset spells they can cast again.

If a wizard does not study, they can still cast any of the spells they know at each spell level. However, spells they have already cast remain expended, cannot be regained until they complete their study.

Wizard Spellcasting

A wizard may cast spells up to their level.

5 spells per day for each levels 1-2

4 spells per day for each levels 3-7

2 spell per day for each levels 8-9

Example: A 3rd-level wizard can cast 5 Level 1 spells, 5 Level 2 spells, and 4 Level 3 spells each day.

THIEF

Masters of stealth and subterfuge. Thieves move silently, strike from shadows, slip locks, disarm traps, and navigate the hidden underworld of rumor, disguise, and dark markets. They are limited to padded, leather and studded leather armor, cannot use a shield, and only one-handed weapons, including short bows, hand crossbows, and slings.

Starts with 7 HP and gains +7 HP every level.

Starts off with no gear, just a dagger.

Starts off with 150 gold pieces to buy everything from gear to weapons to armor.

Requirement: to be a thief class, your dexterity ability scores must be at least 16.

Thief Default Class Abilities

Underworld Marks

You know the hidden symbols criminals use: scratches on doorframes, chalk marks on walls, arranged stones. Read and leave coded warnings about guards, loot, or danger. Other thieves recognize you as guild-trained.

Backstab

Once per encounter, if the moment arises, a strike from surprise (often from behind or when the foe is distracted) grants +4 to hit and +50% more damage.

Pick Locks

You can attempt to pick locks (other classes see next page). 1st level success starts at 30% success, +5% per level.

Remove Traps

You can attempt to disarm traps safely, not triggering trap (other classes see next page). 1st level success starts at 30% success, +5% per level.

Pick Pockets

You may attempt to filch small items unnoticed. 1st level success starts at 30%, +5% per level.

Move Silently

You can sneak where others cannot. 1st level success start at 25%, +5% per level.

Hide in Shadows

You can sneak where others cannot. 1st level success start at 25%, +5% per level.

Climb Walls

You can scale sheer surfaces (castle walls, cliffs, dungeon shafts). 1st level success start at 40%, +5% per level.

What if Other Classes Try?

Untrained Thievery

Thieves are specialists. Certain abilities belong only to them, just as arcane magic spells belong only to wizards. However, in desperate moments, any adventurer might attempt a few thief-like skills.

Exclusive to Thieves

Backstab – Only thieves may strike from surprise for +4 to hit and double damage.

Pick Locks / Remove Traps – Only thieves may attempt these tasks, unless magic or the DN rules otherwise.

Tasks Anyone May Attempt (Untrained):

Non-thieves may try the following at a flat chance. Unlike thieves, their chance does not improve with level.

Pick Pockets – 10%

Move Silently – 15%

Hide in Shadows – 15%

Climb Walls – 20% (requires rope, hooks, or similar gear)

Modifiers: The DN may grant a +5% bonus for good tools or plenty of time, or impose a –10% penalty for poor conditions, heavy armor, or bad circumstances.

Note: if your class has a particular ability that caters to any of the thief skills, give character +20% success on top of the untrained value.

For example: Fighter has Wall Mule - you have a 40% chance to climb walls (no progression), limited to heights of 60 feet.

Thief Level-Up Bonuses

Thief has 2 tiers to choose from per level, starting at 1st level.

Thief chooses any 1 unique Level-Up Bonuse Abilities at each level (1–9). These reflect stealth, cunning, criminal instincts, and urban survival.

Choose any 1 of Tier 1 Bonuses per level starting at level 1.

Thief Tier 1 Bonuses

Inside Man - In any organization or household, you always know someone on the inside, “you know a guy,” a guard who gambles, a servant with debts, a clerk who drinks. Once per location, they’ll provide one favor for the right price.

Cat’s Landing - You take half damage from falls. Once per day, survive any fall up to 30 feet in height as long as there’s something to grab or bounce off on the way down.

Blend In – In crowds or public places, you can vanish from notice or pass as someone ordinary. Once per scene, avoid attention.

Debt Collector - You know how to make people talk through intimidation, not violence. When you explain what could happen to them, they believe you. Target reveals one secret rather than face what you’re implying

Poison Savvy – You can identify and apply poisons safely. +2 to resist poison. You never poison yourself by accident.

Dark Markets – You always know where to buy or sell illegal goods in towns and cities. You can fence loot discreetly. Example 1: Need poison? They know a guy. Example 2: Need to sell those jewels you stole from the duke? Know where to go without getting arrested.

Acrobat’s Grace – Balance on ledges, swing from chandeliers, or vault fences without a roll unless under pressure. +2 to agile stunts for Chance Rolls.

Shadow Lore – You know the hidden layouts of cities: smuggler tunnels, thieves’ marks, rooftops, etc. Once per month, ask “Where’s the hidden way?”

Gut Instinct – Once per day, ask “Is this a trap or setup?” The DN gives a vague but honest feeling: safe, suspicious, or very wrong.

Thief Level-Up Bonuses

Choose any 1 of Tier 2 Bonuses per level starting at level 1.

Thief chooses any 1 unique Level-Up Bonuse Abilities at each level (1–6). These reflect social cunning, deception, and performance skills

Thief Tier 2 Bonuses

Performer's Face - You can disguise yourself as different social classes, ages, or even genders with makeup and clothing. The disguise holds up unless closely inspected by someone who knows what to look for.

Rumor Mill - In any tavern or marketplace, you can plant a rumor that spreads through town within a day, or gather the latest gossip about anyone important. Information is currency.

Fast Friends - After sharing drinks or a meal with someone, they treat you as trustworthy for the next 24 hours. They won't betray you unless given strong reason.

Ear for Music - You can perfectly memorize and reproduce any song, accent, or voice after hearing it once. You know the cultural origin of any music and what emotions it's meant to evoke.

Distraction Artist - You can create a scene that draws everyone's attention for one minute -- a fake fight, dropped coins, feigned illness. During this time, your allies can act unnoticed.

Coin & Dice - You never lose at games of chance unless you choose to. You can spot any cheating at cards, dice, or gambling. In any town, you can find the high-stakes game where real money and secrets change hands.
